These 'kerchiefs were bought way under value from a manufacturer who is retiring from business. Observe that we quote prices by the dozen; are obliged to do this, as the quantities are unusually large for this time of year, and require quick selling—the profits, also, are so small that we could not afford to sell them any other way. Prices quoted are about one half you pay for six or seven; the other five or six cost you nothing!

See some of them displayed in the bottom of Men's Furnishing Window—Market street end.

If You Don't Want

those neat indistinct checked and striped Dress Suitings which we show in such UNUSUAL assortments, we can surely please you with our equally great range of plain fabrics: Ottoman Cords, Serges, Broadcloths and kindred fabrics.

Children's Shoes

When Children Are Grown Up

They often regret the want of proper care for their feet when they were young. The fitting of Children's Shoes is receiving vastly more attention now—days than ever before. Careful parents won't accept "just anything" for their boy or girl. They insist on as correct fitting for the children as is given their mothers. Our Children's Shoes come in different widths and various styles best suited to their particular needs. We are after your trade—of careful attention, good shoes at honest prices go for anything we expect to get it.

She Changed her Mind.

Lizzie Levi, a wayward Pittsburgh girl, agreed to return home yesterday after refusing to do so the day before.

She was taken from Maud Smith's house of ill-fame on Friday, at the instance of Superintendent Roger O'Mara, of the Pittsburgh police department, and since then until yesterday afternoon she argued strenuously against returning home. The police threatened her with a year's sentence in jail if she stuck to her decision, and this had the wished-for effect. A young man, connected with Superintendent O'Mara's office, took her in charge and both left for the Szabo City last evening on the Baltimore & Ohio.

LACK BACKBONE.

Do Business men on Questions of Reform, Says Rev. Dr. Sooy.

A SERMON ON "SINGULARITY."

Those Who Dare to Stand Alone Meet

With True Prosperity in the Long Run—Moral Cowardice Condemned.

Meeting of the Wheeling Presbytery in This City Tuesday—Church

Doings.

At the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal church last night the pastor, Rev.

J. L. Sooy, D. D., preached a sermon on "Singularity," during which he intimated that there were some citizens lacking in the moral backbone to take the proper stand on questions affecting the community. Men of this stamp feared to be singular, to stand alone.

Dr. Sooy took the phrase of singularity to mean not odd or peculiar, but the standing out alone for principle—to say "no" in times of great portent.

Daniel dared to be singular in the king's palace, when he refused to drink the wine at the table. Singular thus was Nehemiah, daring to stand alone for his moral principles. The emphatic

"no" was the essence of his singularity.

The speaker recalled an incident in the life of Stephen Girard, the great Philadelphia millionaire and philanthropist, although a godless man. Mr.

Girard had found among his clerks a young man who wouldn't work on Sunday, yet the great merchant recommended this youth above all his other employees when a banker asked him to recommend a young man of integrity, and with a conscience. A woman refused the hand of John Ruskin because he scoffed at her evangelical creed, and she was not so scrupulous, the speaker maintained, and he honored the memory of the woman who died three years later of a broken heart.

And this girl was the factor which eventually effected a change of heart in the great English artist and philosopher.

Dr. Sooy then discussed the strength of human character, saying that it was to be judged by its little weaknesses, whether one or more, as well as by the whole in the aggregate. There is no such thing after all as a sterile life.

A bridge is no stronger than its weakest parts. Men should not be afraid to create a stir about wrong doings in their community. They should not be afraid of their business interests being jeopardized by associating themselves with a "reform movement." Men should not be thus practically bribed when it is a right between right and wrong.

The practice of cheating in business was condemned—the adulteration of food and drugs. The desire to get more than it pays for is eating the vitals of the business community. The merchant "marks down" his goods, a system that is a lie, for he can't sell "below cost" and keep up his store. Neither can a builder contract to build an $8,000 house for $5,000. He may say so to flatter the man about to build, so desirous of getting more than he pays for, but the mechanic must use poor material or slight his work to come out even on his contract. The trouble lies in the fact that neither seller nor buyer is honest enough; they should be manly and singular, standing out for the truth, dealing open, frank and fair with each other. Principle rather than policy brings prosperity in the true sense after all. There should be no compromise with conscience.

Concluding, Dr. Sooy said it was refreshing to find a ruler or governor who thinks more of the public good than his private interest, and he scored the negligence of municipal bodies and officials to enforce the Sabbath laws and various violations smoothed over through fear of defeat at the polls.

A Successful Revival.

The revival meetings at the Second Christian church closed last night. The pastor, Rev. F. D. Naylor, was assisted by Evangelist A. B. Cobb, of Decatur, Ill., and by reason of the meetings twenty-five new members were received into the church, bringing the membership up to 104. Considering the fact that Mr. Naylor has been with the new church less than a year, the results of his labors reflect highly on his zeal, and are worthy of commendation.

The Washington Presbyterial.

Two committees that were overlooked inadvertently in connection with the meeting of the Washington presby-terial, and on which reflect no little credit of the successful arrangements, were composed of the following ladies:

Soliciting committee—Mesdames T. B. McClain, Wood, Myron Hubbard, Tinker, Morse and Lawson. Reception committee—Mesdames Jepson, Vance,

Joseph Bell, Malise, Terrell, Spaw, Harrison, Cummins and A. W. Kelly.

Among the resolutions adopted was a set thanking the Intelligencer for copies of the paper donated for the use of the delegates. Mrs. M. E. Irwin and the other ladies worked hard for the entertainment of the visitors; and the visitors went away with fond memories of their stay.

Annual Thank Offering.

The annual services at the First United Presbyterian church yesterday were conducted by the Women's Mission society. A programme of Bible readings, talks and hymns was carried out, and the annual thank-offering was taken. The attendance was large, and the exercises were full of interest.

Mr. Zulauf's Farewell.]]

Mr. Charles Zulauf, for many years basso in the Second Presbyterian church, made his appearance for the last time last night in that connection.

He sang a solo, "Calvary," exceptionally well, and the occasion attracted a number of Mr. Zulauf's friends. Mr.

Zulauf leaves for Pittsburgh this week, accompanied by the best wishes of the entire city.
